Mr. B's Buzz

It has been said that March will often come in like a lion. If you ask me, March 2017 came in as a stampede! Seriously, the storms that came through on Wednesday this week are a reminder for all of us to use common sense and caution during periods of extreme weather. When a tornado warning has been issued by the National Weather Service the response should always be "shelter in place." One should never try to "out run" a tornado in a car. The car is the most unsafe place to be during such weather conditions. Sacred Heart School will not release students during a tornado warning and we "sheltered in place".

As announced through the school's official communication vehicle, Jupiter, the school was without electric Thursday from 11:28 AM until 1:31 PM. We were also without phone service and internet during this time. I want to compliment all of our students and staff as we went about our normal business during this unexpected interruption. I also want to assure parents that our school safety was not compromised, and that students and staff were safe and comfortable. We had plenty of water on hand and our restroom facilities were operational. When the school is without phone service parents will be directed to call 812-374-4859.

By the time you read this newsletter, ISTEP+ Part 1, paper/pencil testing will almost be completed. Our students have been well prepared and it has shown so far by their diligent and steady work during testing. I want to encourage all students to continue with sufficient sleep, exercise, and healthy eating at home, especially during this testing period.

With the help of Mrs. Taylor, our librarian, we celebrated Dr. Seuss' birthday on Thursday. Congratulations to the following door decorating contest winners: First Grade (Most Creative), Second Grade (Most Class Participation), and Fourth Grade (Best Representation of the Book). BTW: Who is that new Cat in the Hat on the First Grade door? Our "birthday celebration" continued today as students participated in a Read Quest with other students throughout the U.S. They reached their reading goals by successfully completing accelerated reading tests.

Good luck to the following students who will be participating in the Optimist Club speech contest on Thursday: Josie Martin, Katlyn Wright, Olivia Fisher, Addie Rose Scott, Sicilia Giacalone, Olivia Lovan, Claire Bandy, Mathew Martin, Tyrone Davis, and Hayden Vissing.

We are anchored in Christ,
Frank Barlag
